INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiffs' opposition to the motion to dismiss filed by Defendant Internet 3 Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers ("ICANN") flagrantly 4 mischaracterizes the facts and the arguments set forth in ICANN's motion. For 5 example, Plaintiffs assert that "Plaintiffs here have no relationship with the Dotster
6 plaintiffs, other than the fact that (like the Dotster plaintiffs), Plaintiffs are ICANN 7 accredited registrars." Opp. at 14:8-10. Plaintiffs know this assertion is false: 8 some of the Plaintiffs are active members of a consortium of registrars who publicly 9 took responsibility for pursuing the Dotster litigation,<sup>1</sup> in which exactly the same 10 arguments were made in this Court — that ICANN's decision to permit WLS 11 violated the Registrar Accreditation Agreement between Plaintiffs and ICANN.
12 Judge Walter completely rejected Plaintiffs' interpretation of the RAA. This Court 13 should not permit the relitigation of the same issues.

14 Plaintiffs then misstate the law and the allegations required for claims based 15 on California's Unfair Competition Law ("UCL"). Plaintiffs' first claim for relief 16 rests on the assertion that the WLS would amount to an unlawful "lottery." 17 Plaintiffs ask the Court to disregard the facts regarding WLS — as asserted in 18 Plaintiffs' complaint and in materials over which the Court may take judicial 19 notice — and accept Plaintiffs' conclusory allegation that WLS is a distribution of 20 domain names by "chance." Since it is clear that WLS will not be dominated by 21 chance (the necessary element to prove a "lottery"), the Court should not accept 22 conclusory (and false) allegations that would result in the parties engaging in 23 expensive discovery on this issue.

24 As for the three UCL claims against ICANN (the first, fifth, and seventh 25 claims for relief), Plaintiffs' opposition does not set forth any basis to save these 26 claims from dismissal, at least with respect to ICANN. A single allegation against 27

28 <sup>1</sup> See VeriSign's Motion to Dismiss at 1:25-28.

1 ICANN in each of the claims is insufficient to meet the UCL pleading standard, and 2 the fact that Plaintiffs are businesses that obviously are suing to protect their own 3 business interests means that they cannot bring a representative action.

4 Because this is the second time that Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim 5 against ICANN, ICANN urges the Court to dismiss Plaintiffs' First Amended 6 Complaint ("FAC") with prejudice.

7 ARGUMENT

8 I. PLAINTIFFS' FIRST, FIFTH, AND SEVENTH CLAIMS BASED ON 9 VIOLATIONS OF CALIFORNIA'S UCL ARE FATALLY
10 DEFICIENT AND MUST BE DISMISSED AS A MATTER OF LAW
11 AS AGAINST ICANN.

12 A. Incorrect Legal Conclusions Aside, WLS Is Not Dominated By 13 Chance, And Is Therefore Not A Lottery.

14 Plaintiffs argue that the Court must accept as true their allegation that WLS is 15 a distribution of domain names by "chance" and thus is an unlawful lottery. Opp. at 16 11:3-6.<sup>2</sup> Plaintiffs apparently believe that any time a plaintiff makes a conclusory 17 allegation, the Court is bound to permit that claim to proceed in spite of the actual 18 facts and law. Plaintiffs are wrong. Motion at 6; Anderson v. Clow (In re Stac 19 Electronics Sec. Litig.), 89 F.3d 1399, 1403 (9th Cir. 1996) ("[C]onclusory 20 allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to 21 dismiss for failure to state a claim.") (quoting In re VeriFone Sec. Litig., 11 F.3d 22 865, 868 (9th Cir. 1993)).<sup>3</sup>

23 <sup>2</sup> In their Request for Judicial Notice, Plaintiffs propose that the Court take 24 judicial notice of a demurrer filed in the Smiley matter, a case involving "different 25 parties and different issues," to show that "defendants" common to both cases have 26 taken different positions in two separate cases. However, the pleading in the Smiley 27 matter cannot be considered here in deciding ICANN's motion to dismiss because 28 Plaintiffs' RJN applies only to VeriSign and Network Solutions.

<sup>3</sup> In United States ex rel. Chunie v. Ringrose, 788 F.2d 638, 643 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1009 (1986), plaintiffs argued that the district court had to

1 The facts alleged in the FAC show that WLS is not dominated by chance but 2 by the execution of personal, business and economic decisions.<sup>4</sup> Motion at 3 13:6-14:11. Plaintiffs now argue that WLS relies on chance because the 4 distribution of "the domain name is based upon a decision by someone other than 5 the WLS subscriber." Opposition to VeriSign's Motion to Dismiss ("VeriSign 6 Opp.") at 13:15-16. But the fact that decisions are made by persons other than the 7 WLS subscriber does not convert those decisions into "chance" similar to the roll of 8 the dice, the drawing of a number or the turn of a card.

9 The case law, including the cases on which Plaintiffs rely, does not define 10 "chance" with regard to whether a third-party selects a winner, but whether a 11 winner is selected arbitrarily. VeriSign Opp. at 12:19-13:25; 76 Op. Atty. Gen.
12 Cal. 266, *3 (1993) ("When the person conducting the promotion arbitrarily selects 13 the winner, the chance element is present . . .") (emphasis added); People v. Hecht, 14 119 Cal. App. Supp. 778, 787 (1931) (finding that "chance" is present where a 15 winner is selected through a blind drawing, and placing no importance on the fact 16 that the promoter of the game selected the winner). Were this not the case, a 17 sporting event wherein an athlete pays to enter a competition judged by third parties 18 would constitute an illegal lottery.

19
20 (continued...)

21 accept as true their allegation that a portion of land was not within the territory 22 "ceded" to the United States under a treaty. The Ninth Circuit, after stating that the 23 district court "need not assume the truth of legal conclusions cast in the form of 24 factual allegations," ruled that the territory was "ceded" to the United States despite 25 plaintiffs' conclusory allegation to the contrary. Id. at 643 n.2.

26 <sup>4</sup> Plaintiffs intimate that, to be an illegal lottery, an activity need only 27 "involve" or "rely" on chance. VeriSign Opp. at 12:6-13:27. This is not the law.
28 California courts require a demonstration that the activity is dominated by chance.
Motion at 13:3-5; In re Allen, 59 Cal. 2d 5, 6 (1962) ("The test is not whether the game contains an element of chance or an element of skill but which of them is the dominant factor in determining the result of the game.").

1 WLS subscribers will be successful (or unsuccessful) not because of random 2 or arbitrary selection, but because a number of personal, business and economic 3 judgments have been made. Motion at 13:6-14:11. The fact that persons other than 4 the WLS subscriber will be involved in making these decisions does not convert 5 WLS into an unlawful lottery. Luck and good fortune do not dominate WLS, and 6 thus Plaintiffs' cannot assert this claim as a matter of law.

7 B. Plaintiffs' Opposition Misconstrues The "Competency"
8 Requirements To Bring A Representative Action.

9 Plaintiffs argue that their requested remedy — injunctive relief — for their 10 representative UCL claims eliminates the otherwise applicable requirement that 11 Plaintiffs be "competent" to represent the general public.<sup>5</sup> Opp. at 6:13-20. In 12 support of this proposition, Plaintiffs cite Marshall v. Standard Insurance 13 Company, 214 F. Supp. 2d 1062, 1067 (C.D. Cal. 2000) and Wilner v. Sunset Life
14 Insurance Company, 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 969 (2000). These cases are inapposite.

15 The California Supreme Court has held that competency is a requirement for 16 a representative action under Section 17200. Kraus v. Trinity Mgt. Servs., Inc., 23 17 Cal. 4th 116, 138 (2000) ("[B]ecause a UCL action is one in equity, in any case in 18 which a defendant can demonstrate a potential for harm or show that the action is 19 not one brought by a competent plaintiff for the benefit of injured parties, the court 20 may decline to entertain the action as a representative suit.") (emphasis added).

21 The issue of competency does not turn on the proposed remedy but on whether the 22 matter is truly one brought on behalf of the general public. See Rosenbluth Int'l, 23 Inc. v. Super. Ct., 101 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1075 (2002). Thus, the fact that

24 _____
25 <sup>5</sup> Confusingly, Plaintiffs also state that they are not pursuing a representative 26 action. Opp. at 6:18-20 ("Here, however, Plaintiffs' UCL claims seek only 27 injunctive relief, and not restitution. Accordingly, this is not a 'representative 28 action' and Plaintiffs need not satisfy the competency requirement."). However, Plaintiffs cite cases discussing representative actions and Plaintiffs allege in their FAC that this is a representative action. See FAC ¶¶ 5.2, 9.2, and 11.2.

1 Plaintiffs have limited their request to injunctive relief<sup>6</sup> does not give Plaintiffs the 2 right to bring a representative action on behalf of the general public. See Kraus, 23 3 Cal. 4th at 138.

4 The cases Plaintiffs rely on were brought by individual consumers, not 5 sophisticated businesses. See Marshall, 214 F. Supp. 2d at 1065; Wilner, 78 Cal.
6 App. 4th at 957. Any discussion in those cases of requested remedies focused on 7 whether due process concerns would be raised by permitting restitution and/or 8 retrospective injunctive relief. Marshall, 214 F. Supp. 2d at 1072-74; Wilner, 78 9 Cal. App. 4th at 969.<sup>7</sup>

10 ICANN does not dispute that representative actions may be brought by 11 certain individual consumers. See Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Super. Ct., 211 12 Cal. App. 3d 758, 773 (1989). However, Plaintiffs are not individual consumers, 13 nor do they constitute (or appropriately represent) the general public: Plaintiffs are 14 businesses that have contracts with ICANN and are seeking to protect their 15 businesses from new competition that WLS would provide. See FAC ¶¶ 2.1-2.8.
16 Plaintiffs plainly are not "competent" to bring a representative action, and thus their

17 <sup>6</sup> Damages would not be available in all events because WLS is not 18 operational yet.

19 <sup>7</sup> In Marshall, an individual consumer of an insurance policy brought suit 20 against the insurer for, among other things, violations of the UCL. 214 F. Supp. 2d 21 at 1065. The consumer's requested remedies included restitution and injunctive 22 relief on behalf of herself individually and the general public. Id. The court 23 dismissed the representative action with respect to the requests for restitution and 24 injunctive relief, but allowed it to continue as to future claims of other insureds. Id.
25 at 1072-74. The court did not discuss the competency of the individual consumer 26 to represent the general public but denied the continuation of a representative action 27 for two of the requested remedies because of the due process concerns implicated.
28 Id. at 1070-71. Similarly, in Wilner, an individual consumer sued her insurer alleging violations of the UCL. 78 Cal. App. 4th at 957. In conjunction with this claim, the individual consumer requested injunctive relief. Id. at 969. The court allowed the representative action to go forward for prospective claims on behalf of all "aggrieved members of the public." Id.

1 attempts to use the UCL to assert rights on behalf of the general public must be 2 rejected. Rosenbluth, 101 Cal. App. 4th at 1078-79.

3 C. Plaintiffs' Opposition Misconstrues The UCL's Pleading
4 Requirements.

5 Plaintiffs argue that short and plain statements are sufficient to withstand a 6 motion to dismiss their fifth and seventh claims for violations of the UCL.
7 Plaintiffs also contend that their UCL claims are governed by Rule 8 of the Federal 8 Rule of Civil Procedure and thus their allegations against ICANN are sufficient to 9 survive a motion to dismiss. See Opp. at 8:10-12, 9:4-6, 9:20-22, 11:5-6. Plaintiffs 10 are wrong.

11 Rule 8 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure generally requires a short and 12 plain statement of the facts showing the plaintiff to be entitled to relief. Fed. R.
13 Civ. Proc. Rule 8. However, alleged violations of the UCL are subject to a 14 heightened pleading standard. Khoury v. Maly's of Cal., 14 Cal. App. 4th 612, 619
15 (1993); Nicolosi Distrib. Co. v. FinishMaster, Inc., Case No. C 99-0927 MJJ, 2000
16 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 505 *1, *5 (N.D. Cal. 2000). This heightened pleading standard 17 requires more than short and plain statements, and facts must be alleged as to each 18 defendant. See GlobeSpan, Inc. v. O'Neill, 151 F. Supp. 2d 1229, 1236 (2001) ("A 19 plaintiff alleging unfair business practices under the unfair competition statutes 20 'must state with reasonable particularity the facts supporting the statutory elements 21 of the violation.'") (quoting Silicon Knights v. Crystal Dynamics, 983 F. Supp.
22 1303, 1316 (N.D. Cal. 1997). Plaintiffs' FAC — with its single paragraph of 23 allegations against ICANN — obviously falls well short of meeting this standard.
24 Indeed, these allegations truly are insufficient under Rule 8 as well.

25 Plaintiffs make a bare attempt to salvage their UCL claims by misconstruing 26 ICANN's role to be one of enforcer, rather than a regulator, of the Internet's Domain 27 Name System. For example, in their fifth cause of action, Plaintiffs allege that 28

1 ICANN should require "Verisign to disclose (or to require registrars to disclose)
2 that consumers may not have the opportunity to renew their WLS subscriptions 3 after the one-year trial period." See FAC 33: 1-3. As stated in ICANN's Motion, 4 and not contested in Plaintiffs' Opposition, this is not ICANN's role. Motion at 5 10:11-24.

6 Plaintiffs argue that they have satisfied their heightened pleading 7 requirements by incorporating previous allegations by reference. Which allegations 8 against ICANN? Plaintiffs do not explain. Plaintiffs have alleged a total of twelve 9 claims for relief, only four of which are asserted against ICANN. In all three of 10 their UCL causes of action that include ICANN as a defendant — the first, fifth and 11 seventh claims — Plaintiffs' allegations against ICANN cannot be sufficient to pass 12 the heightened pleading requirements for UCL claims.<sup>8</sup> See Silicon Knights, 983 F.
13 Supp. at 1316; GlobeSpan, 151 F. Supp. 2d at 1236; Khoury, 14 Cal. App. 4th at 14 619.

15 II. PLAINTIFFS' TWELFTH CLAIM FOR BREACH OF THE 16 REGISTRAR ACCREDITATION AGREEMENT MUST FAIL.

17 In their twelfth claim, Plaintiffs allege that ICANN has breached the RAA by 18 authorizing VeriSign to proceed with WLS. FAC ¶¶ 4.59-68, 16.5-16.28.

20 <sup>8</sup> See Motion at 10:25-12:6 (Only allegation possibly directed against ICANN 21 in first claim: "The Defendants and each of them have aided or assisted in setting 22 up, managing, or drawing the lottery in the WLS lottery enterprise" (FAC ¶ 5.19); 23 only allegation possibly directed against ICANN in fifth claim: "ICANN approved 24 the WLS for a one-year trial without requiring Verisign to disclose (or to require 25 registrars to disclose) that consumers may not have the opportunity to renew their 26 WLS subscriptions after the one-year trial period" (FAC ¶ 9.6); only allegation 27 possibly directed at ICANN in seventh claim: Plaintiffs' references to the Registry 28 Agreement between VeriSign and ICANN and the Registry-Registrar Agreements between VeriSign and all ICANN-accredited registrars (FAC ¶¶ 11.6-11.7); and their assertion that "[n]either ICANN nor the Department of Commerce has authority to approve Verisign's attempt to leverage its de facto control into de jure rights" (FAC ¶ 11.10)).

1 Plaintiffs' opposition characterizes this claim as being based on ICANN's breach of 2 the RAA "by denying [Plaintiffs] the right to delete domain names" (Opp. at 13:12-3 13), and that their claim is different than that of the Dotster plaintiffs, which was 4 based on "their alleged inability to register domain names" (Opp. at 17:27-18:1).

5 Plaintiffs' mischaracterizations of the claims in this lawsuit and in the Dotster 6 lawsuit cannot alter the fact that both cases challenge the appropriateness of 7 ICANN's actions in addressing VeriSign's request to offer WLS, and both cases do 8 so on the basis of the RAA executed by ICANN and the plaintiff-registrars. But the 9 RAA gives Plaintiffs no right to interfere with ICANN's separate contractual 10 relationships with any of the Internet's registries, including VeriSign. Instead, the 11 provisions of the RAA on which Plaintiffs rely give Plaintiffs rights only if and 12 when ICANN takes actions "that impact the rights, obligations, or role of 13 Registrar." RAA § 2.3 (emphasis added). This is the precise issue that Judge 14 Walter addressed, ruling in ICANN's favor. Compare FAC ¶ 16.14 ("[b]y 15 approving the WLS without obtaining consensus, ICANN acted unjustifiably, 16 arbitrarily, inequitably, and unfairly, and in so doing breached its contractual 17 obligations to each Plaintiff."), with Ex. A (November 10, 2003 Order) at 6 (Judge 18 Walter held that, because WLS did not affect the rights, obligations, or roles of the 19 registrars under the RAA, the RAA's requirements concerning ICANN's adoption 20 of "Consensus Policies" did not apply to WLS).

21 A. Collateral Estoppel Applies To Plaintiffs' Contract Claim 22 Against ICANN.

23 The issue of whether ICANN needed to seek and achieve "consensus" before 24 it approved WLS — which is the issue presented in Plaintiffs' FAC (¶ 16.14) — 25 was fully and fairly litigated and disposed of as a result of a final judgment in 26 Dotster. Plaintiffs in this action (or some of them) were parties in privity with the 27 parties in Dotster. Thus, the elements of collateral estoppel have been established.

1 See In re Palmer, 207 F.3d 566, 568 (9th Cir. 2000) (citing Pena v. Gardner, 976 2 F.2d 469, 472 (9th Cir. 1992)).<sup>9</sup>

3 Plaintiffs argue that "the Dotster plaintiffs did not raise the issue of whether 4 ICANN's conduct violated the UCL, or whether ICANN breached the RAA by 5 denying them the right to delete domain names." Opp. at 13:11-13. The first point 6 is irrelevant — ICANN did not argue that collateral estoppel (or res judicata) apply 7 to Plaintiffs' UCL claims. Those claims fail for independent reasons, as explained 8 above.

9 As to Plaintiffs' alleged "right to delete domain names" (FAC ¶ 16.7), the 10 complaint itself describes the deletion process (FAC ¶¶ 4.25-4.34) and makes clear 11 that WLS does not change registrars' ability to delete domain names (which only 12 the registry can do); it only affects the right to re-register domain names once those 13 names are deleted from the registry. This was precisely the basis for the contract 14 claim asserted by the Dotster plaintiffs (Opp. at 17:27-18:1). Whether one 15 characterizes WLS as affecting the ability to "delete domain names" or the ability to 16 "register domain names," the point is that WLS is a voluntary service, all ICANN-17 accredited registrars will not be required to participate in WLS, WLS is not a 18 "Consensus Policy" as defined by the RAA, and WLS will not affect the rights, 19 obligations, or role of all registrars under the RAA. These are the issues that Judge 20 Walter addressed, and they clearly dispose of the same contract claim here.<sup>10</sup>

21 <sup>9</sup> Plaintiffs argue that Judge Walter's decision not to accept the proposed 22 transfer of this case is a basis to defeat collateral estoppel and res judicata (Opp. at 23 12:11-17), but Judge Walter's one-sentence order declining transfer obviously is not 24 an adjudication of anything other than that he did not wish to accept reassignment of the case (for whatever reason).

25 <sup>10</sup> Remarkably, in their opposition to VeriSign's motion to dismiss the FAC, 26 Plaintiffs rely on Judge Walter's Order as definitive law. See Opp. to VeriSign's 27 Motion ("Indeed, one court has already made the factual finding that '[c]ontrary to 28 the current system, domain names that are subject to a WLS subscription would never be deleted from the registry when the original registration expired.' Dotster, Inc. v. Internet Corp., 296 F. Supp. 2d 1159, 1161 (C.D. Cal. 2003)."). Plaintiffs'

1 Plaintiffs then argue that the Dotster litigation cannot provide the basis for 2 asserting either collateral estoppel or res judicata because "[m]ost significantly, the 3 Dotster case was litigated before ICANN had actually approved the WLS, and the 4 harm that the Dotster plaintiffs sought to enjoin was therefore speculative." Opp. at 5 13:14-16. But Plaintiffs filed this action on March 1, 2004 — before ICANN 6 conditionally approved the WLS on March 6, 2004. Motion at 4:13-20. And 7 whether or not WLS was "approved" before or after the filing of this action, the 8 underlying issue of whether the RAA applies to WLS has already been decided.
9 Judge Walter, in analyzing whether or not to grant a preliminary injunction, 10 discussed at length the viability of the Dotster plaintiffs' claim in terms of their 11 likelihood of succeeding on the merits. See Ex. A at 6-7. Judge Walter never ruled 12 that the Dotster plaintiffs' claim was unripe, as Plaintiffs assert, and the Dotster 13 plaintiffs made exactly the same "we are being injured by the imminent 14 implantation of WLS" argument that Plaintiffs make here. Opp. at 13:14-21.

15 Plaintiffs devote more than three pages of their opposition to addressing the 16 privity element of collateral estoppel (and res judicata). However, they do not 17 acknowledge the one essential fact that destroys their argument: the "Domain 18 Justice Coalition," which took responsibility for the Dotster litigation, included at 19 least two of the plaintiffs in this action as members (R. Lee Chambers Co. LLC and 20 Fiducia LLC). See <http://www.stopwls.com/lawsuit.html>.<sup>11</sup>

23 reliance on Judge Walter's Order as definitive law illustrates that Plaintiffs' twelfth 24 claim is also precluded by the doctrine of stare decisis. See Black's Law 25 Dictionary 1406 (6th ed. 1990) (when court has decided a principle of law applying 26 to a certain set of facts, the principle will be followed where facts are substantially 27 the same, regardless of whether parties are the same, and the same court or other 28 courts of equal or lower rank will be bound).

<sup>11</sup> VeriSign included this fact in its Motion to Dismiss, but Plaintiffs do not address it in any of their opposition papers. See VeriSign's Motion at 1:25-28.

1 Thus, Plaintiffs' statements about the absence of any relationship between 2 these Plaintiffs and the Dotster plaintiffs are simply false. There is privity, and that 3 privity justifies the application of collateral estoppel.<sup>12</sup> See, e.g., Opp. at 14:3-6 4 ("Privity 'contemplates an express or implied legal relationship by which parties to 5 the first suit are accountable to non-parties who file a subsequent suit with identical 6 issues.' United States v. ITT Rayonier, Inc., 627 F.2d 996, 1003 (9th Cir. 1980)").

7 B. The Doctrine of Res Judicata Also Applies to Plaintiffs' Contract 8 Claim.

9 Plaintiffs take issue with the test for the first element of res judicata (identity 10 of claims) that is set forth in Nordhorn v. Ladish Co., 9 F.3d 1402, 1405 (9th Cir.
11 1993). But the "Nordhorn test" does not require that all four parts of the "criteria" 12 be met before res judicata will be applied. See Nordhorn, 9 F.3d at 1405 ("The 13 Ninth Circuit determines whether or not two claims are the same for purposes of res 14 judicata with reference to the following criteria") (emphasis added) (reversing the 15 district court's application of res judicata on the grounds that the plaintiffs' second 16 suit was against a different company than the first and involved a different 17 contract).

18 The relevant inquiry for the first "criteria" is "whether rights or interests 19 established in the prior judgment would be destroyed or impaired by prosecution of 20 the second action." The inquiry does not end by looking at the effect of a judgment 21 in this case on the plaintiffs in Dotster, as Plaintiffs suggest. Opp. at 17:17-19. The 22 fact that the rights and interests of ICANN would be severely affected if this second 23 action on the same issue was permitted to proceed is equally relevant.

26 <sup>12</sup> Thus, Plaintiffs have no basis to distinguish In re Schimmels, 127 F.3d 875 27 (9th Cir. 1987), by arguing that the court "found that '[t]he government was aware 28 of, and even tacitly participated in, the adjudication of the [private parties'] adversary proceeding, but never sought to intervene therein.'" Opp. at 14:28-15:3.

1           The second criteria — whether the same evidence is presented in the two 2 actions — cannot be ascertained on a motion to dismiss, although we do know that 3 the contract that forms the basis for both actions is the same. And the other three 4 "criteria" for an identity of claims to be established are clearly present. See 5 Nordhorn, 9 F.3d at 1405.<sup>13</sup>

6           As for the third and fourth "criteria," Plaintiffs in both suits are ICANN-7 accredited registrars that claim that ICANN breached the RAA by not following the 8 procedures referenced in the RAA with respect to WLS. Thus, the "rights" and 9 issues in the two cases are identical. Plaintiffs cannot deny that the "same 10 transactional nucleus of facts" form the basis of their breach of contract claim; 11 simply saying the facts are different does not make them so. Anderson v. Clow (In 12 re Stac Electronics Sec. Litig.), 89 F.3d 1399, 1403 (9th Cir. 1996) ("[c]onclusory 13 allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to 14 dismiss for failure to state a claim.")(internal quotation omitted); Scheid v. Fanny 15 Farmer Candy Shops, Inc., 859 F.2d 434, 436 (6th Cir. 1988) (to withstand scrutiny 16 under Rule 12(b)(6), the complaint "must contain either direct or inferential 17 allegations respecting all the material elements to sustain a recovery under some 18 viable legal theory.") (internal quotations omitted).

19           As the more recent Tahoe-Sierra decision explains, "[t]he fact that res 20 judicata depends on an 'identity of claims' does not mean that an imaginative 21 attorney may avoid preclusion by attaching a different legal label to an issue that 22 has . . . been litigated." Tahoe-Sierra Pres. Council, Inc. v. Tahoe Reg. Planning 23 Agency, 322 F.3d 1064, 1077-78 (9th Cir. 2003). Plaintiffs cannot evade 24 application of the res judicata doctrine by asserting that "Plaintiffs' claims center on 25 their inability to delete domain names, while the Dotster plaintiffs' claims were

26           <sup>13</sup> Contrary to Plaintiffs' suggestion, Judge Walter did not "determin[e] that 27 the Dotster plaintiffs did a poor job of presenting their own evidence." Opp. at 28 17:21-23.

1 based on their alleged inability to register domain names" (Opp. at 17:27-18:1), or 2 by asserting that "Defendants are selling 'pre-orders' for WLS subscriptions, and 3 Plaintiffs therefore suffer immediate harm in a way that the Dotster plaintiffs did 4 not" (Opp. at 18:2-4). In both cases, plaintiffs claim that when ICANN considered 5 WLS, it breached the RAA by not following the procedures referenced in the RAA 6 and that implementation of WLS would injure Plaintiffs' businesses. The essence 7 of the claims is truly identical.

8 CONCLUSION

9 Each of Plaintiffs' claims for relief against ICANN — the first, fifth, seventh, 10 and twelfth claims — are deficient as a matter of law and cannot be cured by 11 amendment. ICANN urges the Court to dismiss these claims for relief with 12 prejudice.
